2.6.2 - Attainment of Programme outcomes and course outcomes are evaluated by the institution.

The effectiveness of the teaching-learning process in our institution was assessed through a multifaceted approach. Key indicators included overall program results, student feedback, and surveys on progression to higher education and employment. The Student Satisfaction Survey provided valuable insights into the overall learning experience.

A significant number of students actively participated in academic fests and competitions, securing prizes at various levels. This demonstrated high levels of motivation, competence, and skill development. Moreover, the consistent attendance rate of over 80% across all programs highlighted the students' dedication and engagement.

The institution has also evaluated program and course outcomes based on students' progression to higher education, campus placements, and external job placements. Participation in extracurricular activities like NCC, NSS, Red Cross, Rovers and Rangers, clubs, associations, sports, and cultural events was considered an important factor.

It is noteworthy that a substantial portion of the student body hails from rural and socially disadvantaged backgrounds. Despite these challenges, the high attendance rate and impressive achievements in higher education and employment demonstrate the effectiveness of the programs in enabling student success.
